

Rural Politics in the United States

COURSE INFORMATION	Term: Spring 2021, Mod 2 Level: Intermediate Seminar Meet: Tuesday, 3-5 Type: Remote (synchronous or asynchronous) Syllabus Revision: January 28, 2021	Instructor: Jack Reilly live text: ncfpolgeo.slack.com E-mail: jreilly@ncf.edu Office Hours: Fridays, 9-11 Appointments: jackreilly.com/appointments
DESCRIPTION	This intermediate seminar examines the political context of rural America. While urban politics, suburban politics, and regional politics (especially southern politics) in the United States attracts frequent attention in academic circles, rural politics has no comparably significant literature, a gap that is increasingly striking and problematic as the rural and urban political divide increases with every passing year in American politics. In this course, we develop an understanding of the unique form, structure, and shape of rural politics, with an aim of gaining an appreciation for the unique contours of society, culture, policy, and public opinion in this increasingly overlooked segment of American life. Topics to be addressed include rural political behavior, ideology, voting, and partisanship; rural representation, resentment, and populism; rural demography; rural psychology, community structure, social cohesion, and identity; rural policy issues including public service provisions, farming, education, and the environment; and the reasons for the increasing political divide between rural America and the country's cities and suburbs.
COURSE STRUCTURE	This course can be taken in one of two ways: as a remote synchronous discussion seminar, or as an asynchronous correspondence course. Students taking the course need to choose a track at the beginning and stick with it, as course requirements are slightly different in each track.
SIBLING COURSES	This course is a mod2 course (a half semester course) with two sibling half-semester courses: Political Geography , a mod1 course taught in the same time slot as Rural Politics , but taking place in the first half of the semester, and R for GIS and Political Geography , a full term for mod credit course. Students looking for a whole course unit in political geography are encouraged to consider one or both of those courses in addition to this one.
PREREQUISITES	Required: an introductory course in political science or geography. Second, third, or fourth-year status preferred. Enrollment is at the discretion of the instructor, who may waive pre-requisites in special circumstances.

Materials

GUIDANCE Daily Participation and Reading: This is a discussion seminar class; informed class participation is expected and required each week.

Response Papers: Papers should be submitted to the whole class by noon the Monday before class (via slack), and should be read by other students in the class. As you are writing your reaction papers, you may wish to think of some of the following questions:

- What is the primary argument of the readings for this week?
- How do these readings fit together? Do they agree? Disagree?
- How do these readings fit in with other readings from this class, or from other coursework you have taken?
- Do you buy what the author(s) is/are selling? Why or why not?

Discussion Leadership: On the day you have a response paper due, you also lead off class discussion with the professor.

Discussion Questions: Submit discussion questions or points (broadly construed) to the class by 9 AM on the day of class in the course slack. (Note: on days you submit response papers, you don't have to submit discussion questions as well.) Feel free to respond to others comments and questions in the course slack as well as in class seminar!

¹Details subject to change until the start of mod2

Article Presentation: Present the main findings from an article on political geography in class, using slides (10 minutes).

Annotated Bibliography: Identify the articles from a chosen journal focused on political geography over a five year span, and nominate one for inclusion in the course (should you choose).

Course Expectations

ETIQUETTE	Course participants must be courteous to the professor and fellow students. Attend class on time, listen to fellow students when they talk, disagree (or agree) with others' arguments professionally. Remote instruction presents unique challenges to seminar classes, but the principles remain the same: when you are in seminar, attend and focus on the class and your fellow students discussion.
SYNCHRONOUS COMMUNICATION	I encourage you to come by my virtual Zoom student hours at any point if you have questions about the course, the readings, school, etc. To set up a zoom meeting, just schedule time here: http://jacklireilly.com/appointments or email me!
ASYNCHRONOUS COMMUNICATION	Students can generally expect a response to all e-mails within 24 hours, excepting weekends. In addition to email, I encourage you to come to the course slack channel to ask questions or discuss questions outside of regular zoom meeting times.
A NOTE ON WRITING	Clear writing and argumentation is a critical element to success in this class. I strongly recommend exploring the options for writing (and revising!) assistance at the Writing Resource Center. You can schedule an appointment through the writing center here: https://ncf.mywconline.com

Class Schedule

TOPICS OUTLINE Readings in italics are located on the course Google drive. Each week, we have a main reading as well as related articles. (Subject to change)

W	Topic	Main Reading	Text
1	What is Political Geography? What is its Value?	Articles (King; Nall)	1
2	The Psychology of Space and Place	Enos	6

NOTES After week 1, each week has a primary reading, selected from a portion of one of our books, along with a secondary article (or two). For those interested, there is also background reading from the Political Geography text, but this reading is optional.

FIRST CLASS SESSION We will spend most of the first class going over course logistics. For the first week, please scan the following two articles:

- King, 1996, "Why Context Should Not Count" Political Geography.
- Nall, 2015, "The political consequences of spatial policies: How interstate highways facilitated geographic polarization" Journal of Politics

New College Campus Policies and Resources

STUDENT ACCESSIBILITY	New College of Florida is committed to creating a learning environment that meets the needs of its diverse student body. If you are a student with a disability, or think you may have a disability, you are encouraged to initiate a conversation with the office of Student Disability Services (SDS). SDS works with students with disabilities to identify reasonable accommodations and plans ways to implement these with your faculty members. Please visit their website for additional information: https://www.ncf.edu/student-disability-services/ . You may also contact Student Disability in-person (HCL3), via phone at 941-487-4496 OR via email at disabilityservices@ncf.edu . Students are welcome to discuss privately any concerns related to barriers to both fully participating and learning in this course. Students with accommodations are highly encouraged to meet with their primary or partner instructor as soon as possible.
TITLE IX	New College of Florida is committed to equal access to education pursuant to Title IX of the Educational Amendments of 1972. The law protects all individuals on our campus from gender-based discrimination or exclusion or instances of sexual misconduct. All full-time faculty, full-time staff, and resident advisors are Responsible Employees required to report any known instances of sexual misconduct or gender discrimination to the Title IX Coordinator. Please contact our Title IX coordinator (titleix@ncf.edu) or see the website (https://www.ncf.edu/campus-life/title-ix/) for more information.
EQUITY, DIVERSITY, AND EQUAL OPPORTUNITY	New College's commitment to excellence can only be realized in a learning environment that is inclusive, characterized by openness to diverse perspectives, and marked by mutual respect. Anything short of this aspiration is inconsistent with our commitment. Equal access, and the opportunity to participate fully in all of our programs and facilities, without regard to race, color, creed, religion, political ideology, national origin, age, marital status, disability, public assistance status, veteran status, gender identity, gender expression, or sexual orientation, is essential to that commitment and will be the standard to which we expect all members of our learning community to adhere.
ACADEMIC INTEGRITY	Academic integrity is essential to maintaining a vibrant, healthy, and engaging learning environment for which we all must take responsibility. The New College faculty considers academic dishonesty to be a serious violation of community standards. Students are expected to refrain from acts of academic dishonesty, which may include: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. cheating and/or plagiarism (such as: presenting the intellectual work of others as one's own; failing to cite sources; improper paraphrasing via failing to use own words even if a citation is given; partial, incomplete, or inaccurate citation of work of others); 2. unauthorized multiple submissions (submission of the same work for different academic activities, without the approval of the instructor); 3. false citation (false citation of a source or knowingly attributing work to a source from which the referenced material was not obtained);

4. falsifying data (fabricating or altering data to deliberately mislead; for example, changing data to get better experiment results is academically fraudulent);
5. falsifying information, signatures, or initials on official and academic forms.

If you are in doubt about what practices are permissible in an examination, you should consult the professor prior to sitting for the exam. If you lack understanding of how, in a paper or other presentation, to distinguish your thoughts from those of others, the faculty can refer you to standard guidelines and discuss specific questions.
